INCREASED BENEFITS DUE IN NEW STATUTE

By RICHARD RICHARDS State Senator

Increased benefits in unemployment insurance and related programs will become available in the latter part of September, in accordance with new legislation enacted in the 1959 session.

Under the formula finally adopted, the increase in unemployment benefits will be considerable broader in its application than it would have been under the provisions of the original version of the bill. Workers who earn $67 or more a week will be eligible for increased payments, whereas the formula first proposed would have applied the increase only to those earning $89 a week or more.

This means that 65 per cent of all claimants will receive increased benefits rather than only 35 per cent as originally provided.

More than 30 per cent will be eligible for the maximum weekly payment of $55. Under previous law the maximum has been $40 a week.

The measure also provides that exempt weekly earnings will be raised from $3 to $12.

A SECOND measure provides that when unemployment equals or exceeds 6 per cent in any quarter, unemployment insurance benefits will be extended from the present maximum of 26 weeks to a total of 39 weeks.

IN WORKMEN'S compensation, new legislation provides for increases in maximum benefits to $65 a week for temporary disability, and $52.50 a week for permanent disability, with a minimum of $20 a week. It also provides increases in burial benefits from $400 to $600. A totally dependent widow with children will now receive a death benefit of $20, 500 instead of the former amount of $15,000, while the maximum for partial dependence in the event of death is raised from $12,000 to $15,000. The effect of these changes in the law will insure the widow of a fatally injured worker up to $65 a week for approximately 6 years instead of the present maximum of $50 a week for 4 and a half years. In the category of disability insurance, the new scale will provide an increase in the maximum weekly benefit to $65 for claimants with high quarterly earnings of $1,500 or more.

ANY CLAIMANT with an average weekly wage of $86 in his high quarter will obtain some additional weekly benefits under this new legislation. All of these measures had the strong support of the Governor and were enacted with only very light opposition. The only difficulty arose when objections were raised to the limited coverage in unemployment insurance provided by the formula first proposed, but this was broadened before the bill left the Assembly and approved by the Senate in the revised form.
